3. Integrated Teaching and Introduction of Semester System Courses of Studies, Examinations and Medium of Instruction

System of teaching is integrated semester system. It is a unique system in which education is delivered in a process where students can learn according to their interest. After evaluation of their performance / progress assessed through different type of tests and assessments, they earn degrees on their cumulative performance throughout the Programme of their study and they are not compelled to commit every thing to memory for once a year performance.

The academic session shall comprise of two semesters each of sixteen (16) weeks, out of this period fourteen (14) weeks shall be the actual teaching period and remaining two (2) weeks shall be for preparatory leave.

The teaching of first semester may normally commence from 25th November and may continue up to the 1st week of March including one week winter vacation. There will be two (2) weeks preparatory leave from last week of March. The examination consists of Theory (SBQ + Short essay+ Long essay) Practical (OSPE & OSCE.)

3.1 Attendance Policy for the Students

- As per requirements of Peoples University of Medical & Health Sciences for Women Shaheed Benazirabad & PM&DC, the minimum 75% attendance is mandatory for a student to become eligible to appear in the professional examinations.

- Every student is required to be regular and punctual for lectures, practicals, tutorials, demonstration and hospital clinical wards.

- The students must periodically check their attendance record from concerned department.

- The margin of 25% of absence in lectures, practicals, tutorials, demonstrations and clinical wards is desired to cover absence only on account of sickness or any emergency if considered justifiable.

- Repeated absence from lectures, practicals, tutorials, demonstrations and hospital clinical wards, without any justified/cogent reasons, will make a student liable for expulsion from college.

- In all cases, leave taken will be at the student’s own risk so far as the percentage of the attendance is concerned and even the medical certificate will not condone for any deficiency in attendance.

- The students, who do not meet the required percentage of attendance i.e. 75%, will have to make-up their deficiency by attending special classes during summer vocations or preparatory holidays.

   Deduction  Nil

   Example No.2
   Matriculation 2012
   Entry Test  2015

   Entry Test  2015

   And so on...

3) In-case the overall score of two or more candidates are equal, the candidate securing higher marks in the HSC (Pre-Medical/Qualifying Examination) shall be ranked higher in merit for the purpose of admission. The production of equivalence of marks sheet from IBCC shall be the responsibility of the candidate.
9. Formula for Working out the Overall Merit

(a) Matric Science / O level / Equivalent 10% weightage
(b) HSC (Pre-Medical) / A level equivalent 40% weightage
Exam:
(c) Entry test 50% weightage

Note: Only Science subjects (Biology, Chemistry and Physics) will be considered in HSC result for making District merit list

Example:
If a candidate has obtained the following marks:

a) Matric Science / O Level Equivalence 650/850 or 76.47% examination

b) HSC I A Level Equivalent (Science subjects only) 440/600 or 70.00%

c) Entry Test Marks 300/400 or 75.00%

(a) Weightage for SSC O-Level Equivalent = 76.47% x 0.1 = 7.65

(b) Weightage for HSC = 70.00% x 0.4 = 28.00

(c) Weightage for Entry Test = 75.00% x 0.5 = 37.50

Overall merit of candidates a + c = 7.65 + 28.00 + 37.5 = 73.15
All Calculations in progress will be rounded up to two decimal points.

Similarly the merit calculation of A Level Equivalent candidates will be based on three science subjects (Biology, Chemistry and Physics or Mathematic) according to the IBCC formula given below for final merit calculation.

A Grade -------------- 85/100
B Grade -------------- 75/100
C Grade -------------- 65/100
D Grade -------------- 55/100
E Grade -------------- 45/100

Example of formula applied for merit calculation of candidates with A level Equivalent exam:
If a candidate has secured the following grades in science subject:

Biology----------------------- A Grade ---------------------- 85/100
Physics or Mathematic-- A Grade ---------------------- 85/100
Chemistry ------------------ B Grade ---------------------- 75/100
Total 245/300

Since the HSC Pre-Medical examination has 200 marks in each science subject (Biology, Chemistry and Physics or Mathematic) making a maximum total of 600 marks, therefore the acquired and maximum marks of A Level candidates will be multiplied by two.

Now 40% of 490 marks will be considered for weightage in the total marks for final merit of an A Level Equivalent candidate to be at par with HSC (Pre-Medical) candidate.
